

APPENDIX E. SAMPLE OF INTRODUCTORY SCRIPTS FOR THE CAHPS HOME AND COMMUNITY-BASED SERVICES SURVEY

Instructions

The introduction and recruitment script is provided as a basic approach. It is expected that survey sponsors will tailor the introductory script to suit their populations' unique needs, to implement decisions regarding the inclusion of proxies, and to comply with institutional review board (IRB) requirements. Similarly, the sample greeting script for face-to-face interviews is provided as a basic approach and should be tailored by survey sponsors as appropriate.

- Institutional review board requirements. An IRB may require changes in the language, for example, from “survey” to “research study” at first mention. Such potential changes are indicated in italics and brackets. An IRB may have other requirements that could alter the introductory script. Such IRB requirements have precedence over the sample script.
- Proxy respondents. A proxy is someone who answers on behalf of the intended respondent. At the end of the HCBS CAHPS Survey instrument, the interviewer is asked about the type of assistance another person—such as a proxy—provided to the respondent during the survey. Sponsors will need to make decisions about including proxy respondents, and these decisions will affect the script. The sample script assumes that proxies will be allowed. Some prompts are provided for where such decisions should be taken into account in tailoring the script. Because different approaches may be taken, it is envisioned that sponsors will use this sample script as a starting point for developing a script that reflects their decisions regarding proxy respondents. Examples of user considerations related to proxy respondents that affect the script include the following:
  - Whether to allow proxy respondents if a beneficiary is otherwise unable to participate in the survey
  - Whether to require guardian consent for a proxy respondent in the event that consent is not stipulated by an IRB
  - The criterion to apply to who can be a proxy respondent
  - Whether to allow a guardian (any or only certain individuals) to be the beneficiary's proxy respondent
  - Whether to require beneficiary assent in addition to guardian consent in the event that assent is not stipulated by an IRB
  - Whether to require beneficiary assent to have a proxy respondent, and determination of who will be the proxy respondent. From a person-centered perspective, users should consider not allowing a proxy to respond if the beneficiary does not agree to it. Likewise, users should consider not allowing a particular person to be the proxy if the beneficiary does not agree to that person.
  - Whether and how to explore the possibility of having a proxy respondent, if the beneficiary or guardian has not requested one
- Mode. The survey allows for two modes—telephone and face-to-face. The sponsor will need to make a decision as to which mode to use and how to proceed with the modes. For example, a sponsor may wish to randomly assign respondents to one or the other mode or may let the beneficiary choose. The script will need to be modified according to which mode(s) the sponsor selects.

Interviewer and Computer-Assisted Interview Programmer Formatting Conventions

- The following formatting conventions are used only for the purposes of this document. Survey vendors may use their own formatting conventions if they differ from those presented here as long as the intended results are the same (e.g., the same text is read aloud, the same words are emphasized, the same programming instructions are implemented) and the conventions are applied consistently throughout the script.
- Computer-assisted telephone interview (CATI) programmer instructions should be removed from the electronic interviewing system screens. These may appear in <ENGLISH UPPERCASE LETTERS ENCLOSED IN ANGLE BRACKETS>. Many responses include an arrow with a question number to go to, for example “→ GO TO INTRO1.” These are used to show programming instructions that must not actually appear on electronic interviewing system screens.
- Text in {italics and in braces} ideally would be provided by the sponsor’s administrative data or the vendor’s data (e.g., name of survey vendor). Initial information should be programmed by the CATI programmer.
- All text that appears in initial uppercase and lowercase letters should be read aloud. Text that appears in bold, lowercase letters should be emphasized.
- Text in UPPERCASE LETTERS should not be read aloud. For example, “DON’T KNOW” and “REFUSED” answer categories appear in uppercase and should not be read to the respondent, but they may be used to code a response.
- The purpose of the introduction and recruitment script is to protect the privacy of the sampled respondent. The interviewer does not provide details about the survey until he or she is speaking with the sampled respondent. Therefore, the interviewer first asks to speak to the beneficiary before stating the nature of the call. For proxies and/or guardians, the interviewer again first asks for a proxy or the guardian before discussing the nature of the interview.
